Abstract of the Disclosure

A system for transferring data from one source to plural destination devices, employs timing and bus signal control to have one destination device treat the transfer as a read operation, while another destination device treats the transfer as a write operation.